MALLORY TABLANTINO

SENIOR CONSULTANT

Ms. Tablantino combines public relations and marketing to make sure the right messages are being communicated across all platforms. With a strong background in media and print materials she provides the planning behind unique brand experiences.

Most recently Ms. Tablantino served as a consultant for business development, public relations and marketing for national developers, architectural and interior designers. She assisted in designing and implementing comprehensive strategies to promote each brand's unique message to target audiences. Ms. Tablantino also managed the development of portfolios, print materials, website content, promotional events and other corporate materials.

Ms. Tablantino conceptualized and organized the exhibit for the Masters of American Artists and Photographers for the National Art Museum of China. The exhibition is currently scheduled to travel on a six-city tour where it will be gifted to the Museum of Contemporary Art's permanent collection in Beijing, China.

She attended the University of Arizona before teaching photography at a bilingual school on a grant program from NEA. After the program, she moved to Washington, DC to pursue interests at the Washington Institute of Design and then the Corcoran School of Art.

Ms. Tablantino is active in local charities having served as an executive committee member of Knock-Out Abuse Against Women, facilitated events for St. Jude's Children's Hospital and assisted with fundraising for Crossways Community Center.
